Coriolanus, Gnaeus Marcius
(kohr-ee-oh-lay'-nus, gnay'-us mar'-shus)
Gnaeus Marcius Coriolanus was a 5th-century BC Roman patrician who, according to legend, captured the Volscian town Corioli, from which he took his name. He left Rome when accused of misconduct for seeking to abolish the starving plebians' tribunate in return for giving them grain. Thereafter he led the Volscians against Rome until his mother and wife entreated him to stop. The Volscians then killed him. Shakespeare's play Coriolanus is based upon Plutarch's version of his life.

VISITING ARTISTS
Nikita Tkachuk was trained at the Moscow Arts Academy and Bolshoi Theatre. Designs include productions for the Moscow Arts Theatre and Moscow New Dramatic Theatre, over sixty productions in Russia alone. In the United States he has designed for the University of Rochester and the Ballet Iowa. He designed for the University of Rochester the 1994 production of Waiting for Godot and in 1993 The Brothers Karamazov. More recently he has designed the ballet Doctor Zhivago which is slated to tour Russia.

Richard Stockton Rand has acted on Broadway in The Curse of an Aching Heart and Off-Broadway in the New York Shakespeare Festival production of Henry IV, Part One. His regional credits include ACT in Seattle, San Francisco Repertory, and Berkeley Repertory. His solo performances of little suicide, little guys points 1, 2 & 3, i dreamed i was a baseball card, and a hisory of comedy have been performed in 13 countries, 250 cities and 50 universities and theatres. Movement for Coriolanus draws upon his work as a competitive gymnast and wrestler, professional circus performer, mime and dancer, study of Grotowski, Meyerhold, Laban, and martial arts disciplines.

Joel Tishcoff was the lighting designer for the Todd Theatre Troupe's production of Speakeasy at La MaMa E.T.C. in 1995. He graduated from the University of Rochester as a film major and immediately started working as a film lighting technician in New York City. In recent years he has been designing the lights for feature films, music videos, and TV commercials. He worked with choreographer Maureen Fleming in Mexico and The New Arts Festival with David Parsons and Fleming in Fort Meyers, Florida.

William Norman acted in the University of Rochester's production of Nicholas Nickleby. In May of 1994 he graduated from N.Y.U. Tisch School of the Arts where he concentrated on film and television production. Credits include composer/musical director for one-clown show called Pickles in Paradise, co-writer/lyricist for pop band Kolos, and recipient of Strand Fellowship for music composition. Currently he is beginning work on a "silent movie" ballet.

This production is a participating entry in the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival (KC/ACTF). The aims of this national theater education program are to identify and promote quality in college-level theater production. To this end, each production entered is eligible for adjudication by a regional KC/ACTF representative. The production is also eligible for inclusion at the KC/ACTF regional festival.

Eight KC/ACTF regional festivals are produced nationwide each year, and from these festivals up to six productions are selected to be part of the noncompetitive KC/ACTF national festival at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts each spring. KC/ACTF also sponsors regional and national level awards, scholarships, and special grants for actors, playwrights, designers, and critics.

Last year more than 800 productions and 17,000 students participated in the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival nationwide. By entering this production our program is sharing in the KC/ACTF goals to help college theater grow and to focus attention on the exemplary work produced in college and university theaters across the nation.
